

Unless otherwise indicated, all single reviews should be 300-400 words in length (plus opening bibliographic data and closing biographical note). The Book Review Editor may choose not to publish reviews that fall outside of this length requirement. Each review must also include a sentence or two of biographical information on the reviewer. All reviewers, including those who write frequently for Missiology, need to submit their biographical information with each review. Please double-space your review, leave a 1-inch margin on all sides, indent paragraphs, and use Times New Roman Font, Size 12. When referencing a book, italicize rather than underline. If possible, please submit your review by e-mail as an attached file.

Please use the following format for the opening citation:

Confident Witness, Changing World: Rediscovering the Gospel in North America

Edited by Craig Van Gelder

The Gospel and Our Culture Series [or Revised Edition]

Grand Rapids, MI: [or Cambridge, England]: Eerdmans

1999.xix, 313 pp., paper. [or cloth] $24.00*

Reviewed by Hal Morris

Each review should include a balanced, accurate description of the book's content as well as an assessment, positive and negative, and some indication of the book's audience and usefulness (popular, college textbook, standard work, seminary library should be without it, etc.) Brevity requires that the reviewer select those features of the book that will best characterize a book and most require evaluation for readers in the field of missiology.

If your book is a collection of articles or papers, please do not give a grocery list of each chapter and each author; instead, look for the most significant, emerging themes and discuss diverging/unifying perspectives within the book. When quoting the book or referring to a page, put page numbers in parenthesis simply like this (30).

The assessment may include any of the following:

• the author's expertise and present position

• how well the case is argued and data presented

• style

• relation to other works (if mentioned give name of author, title, and publication date)

• significance for missiology or a sub-field of it

• data from the title page not included above in the title (long subtitle, a conference/congress as source of the essays in a collected work, etc.)

• quality of a translation

• value of a reprinting or new edition

• details on a series of which the volume is a part

Following the book review include a brief (one sentence) biographical note indicating your present position (with full name and location of school or agency), missionary experience (if any with country, assignment and years), and nationality (if pertinent to the review).

Thank you for your cooperation and contribution.

* Please be careful to list the publication date given by the Library of Congress rather than the author's copyright date.

Richard L. Starcher, Editor
Missiology: An International Review
Biola University
13800 Biola Avenue
LaMirada, CA 90639
E-mail: editor@asmweb.org

David E. Fenrick, Book Review Editor
Northwestern College
Box C
3003 Snelling Avenue North
St. Paul, MN 55113
Email: review_editor@asmweb.org